PSYCHIATRIC CARE DOESN’T HAVE TO BE PAINFUL

ALFRED W. FORRESTER, MD, PA provides general psychiatric services for adults experiencing a wide variety of mental health issues. Through comprehensive evaluation and ongoing, collaborative treatment, Dr. Forrester specializes in the management of depressive and bipolar disorders, anxiety disorders, dual diagnosis disorders, ADHD, and lifestyle adjustment disorders. Unlike some of his psychiatric colleagues, he does offer psychotherapy designed to help patients resolve interpersonal difficulties, enhance self-esteem, address their adjustment to a major psychiatric illness, and become more effective in pursuing personal & professional goals.

In consultation, Dr. Forrester provides the medication management of many patients who are receiving therapy from non-physician psychotherapists within the Baltimore metropolitan area and also assists his non-physician psychiatric colleagues in the diagnosis & management of their patients’ psychiatric conditions. It is his belief that the empathetic treatment of a psychiatric condition should reflect the fact that it is a brain-disorder: that psychiatric care doesn’t have to be painful.
